

Privacy Policy

TEMARA lends to always approve and protect your personal rights as a user of our site. This policy is a set and protected reference that uses important data and information of TEMARA site users, which have been collected when registering, accessed and using TEMARA services, such as names, e-mail addresses and others. Read the following information carefully to discuss how we treat that information.

TEMARA has the right to withdraw and process the following data about you:

- The information you provide from filling out forms on this site, which is eventual in nature such as user satisfaction surveys and newsletter subscription registration.
- Information from surveys conducted regularly by TEMARA, even if it is not required to be filled out by you.
- Information related to your visit to this site, such as the behavior and source of the visit, and so on.

Cookies and Search Information

TEMARA has the right to collect, process and use information about your computer and search activities, including but not limited to IP addresses, operating systems, browser types, and types of devices used. This information will be used for system administration and service quality improvement purposes from TEMARA, and does not aim to personally identify the user.

TEMARA also has the right to collect information regarding your general internet usage through cookies that are generally stored on your computer, including to:

- Save your preferences to create a more comfortable site experience that suits your interests and needs.
- Speed up the processes on the site such as filling in registration forms, filling in order forms, and searching for products on the site.
- Get to know you when you visit our site at another time.

If you don't want to, you can disable cookies by making changes to the browser settings that you use.

Use and Disclosure of Information

- TEMARA protects all information provided by users during registration, accessing and using all TEMARA services
- TEMARA can use data obtained from you to provide information or services that you request from us or that we consider important to you, with the consideration that you have agreed to contact us regarding these objectives.
- TEMARA will use data obtained from you in carrying out company obligations
- TEMARA can use data obtained from you to inform you of changes in our services.
- TEMARA is not responsible for the exchange of data that is carried out by itself among site users.
- TEMARA can only notify data and information owned by users of the site when required and / or requested by the authorized institution based on applicable legal provisions, official orders from the court, and / or official orders from the relevant agency / apparatus.

Changes to Privacy Policy

TEMARA has the right to make changes to the privacy policy in the future if deemed necessary, and all changes will be displayed on this page. If deemed necessary, we will convey information about these changes via email to each user of the site.

Contact

For all questions and comments about this privacy policy, please contact PT. Temara Global Teknologika via e-mail at support@temara.co.id